A 1921 account of the death of Jumbo suggests the giant elephant was killed because of the negligence of a ~~small boy~~ young boy.

The unsigned article was published in a souvenir program for a St. Thomas ~~con~~vention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firement and ~~Engineers~~ Enginemen.

Titled The Death of Jumbo, the article states: "It is ~~known~~ currently reported that this great pet of the children incidentally lost his life through the negligence of a young boy intrusted with a message regarding the time ~~of~~ the ~~train~~ arrival of the train that struck down the mighty Jumbo.

"The boy stopped on the way to the circus grounds to indulge in a ~~game~~ game with other boys and forgot the message.

"In the meantime, the loading of the animals was proceeded with."
